First and ten. After school on the front lawn, Mr. Steve Fitch, quarterback, sends Jamie Mills long for a pass.

CAN YOU BELIEVE IT?

"Did you see what the new vice-principal was doing yesterday after school?"

"No, what?"

"He was playing football on the front lawn with some of the guys! He can sure throw a mean pass. Can you believe it?"

"Can you believe these walls? I walked upstairs this morning and the bright colors really jumped out at me."

"Yeah, it sure does make a difference. I wonder what they'll come up with next."

"Somebody took my parking space this morning — can you believe the nerve of that guy?"

"Why don't you get his license number and turn him in?"

"I already have. It's YGB-289. What's the use of assigned parking spaces if people don't park in their own?"

YOU'D BETTER BELIEVE IT!

It was a year of changes. Just about everything was different. School didn't start until after Labor Day, but classes started five minutes earlier each morning. There were three lunch periods instead of two. A salad bar was added to the cafeteria. A new principal and vice-principal roamed the halls issuing demerits. The parking lot was lined off into numbered parking spaces and speed bumps were put in. Seniors were released five minutes early for lunch (This led some teachers to suggest that speed bumps be added in hallways). Classroom walls and hallways even took on a new bright appearance. New classes were added to the curriculum and soccer was added to the sports roster. And to record all these changes was the SHIELD, bigger, bolder, and better than ever!

STUDENT LIFE

Reading, writing, and arithmetic bring to mind one word — boring. Luckily, there was more to the school year than these three things. Dances, movies, clubs, parties, shopping trips, and sporting events helped to provide relief from mundane tasks.

For every tedious class period, there was an equally amusing incident, an anticipated interruption, or a time-consuming diversion: Pep rallies ignited tired sixth period spirits. Colorful hall decorations brightened gloomy Monday mornings. Homecoming festivities and dress-up days took the edge off standardized tests and report cards. Snow Court and Prom provided a welcome breather after the dreaded SATs and field trips gave students the chance to miss "dull" classes.

These activities promoted self-awareness, confidence, and harmonious interaction among peers, all of which are an important part of an individual's education.

ANYTHING GOES

"Fashionable" could mean stirrup pants and a baggy sweater. On the other hand, it could mean jeans, Reeboks, and a sweatshirt with a university logo. But then again, it could mean jams and a bright shirt. Then there's always the chance that it could mean a sweater dress. How can this be?

Throughout the halls, "fashion" took on many different interpretations. Different lengths. Different cuts. Belt or suspenders? Boots or high tops? Jeans jackets or letterman jackets? Baggy or snug? Pastel or neon colors? One earring or twelve?

Fashion didn't stop with clothes. Hairstyles were just as diverse. Short and blunt or long and zapped? A spot of blue, anyone?

Whatever works for you. Anything goes!

Sneak attack. Wearing camouflage, sophomore Robert Frazier and junior Sean Muldoon prepare to attack their lunches:

Dressed to kill? Seniors Jenifer Huds Dana Brumfield, and Laura Butler are tired in stylish fashions on Senior Dr Up Day.

Sweating it out. Freshmen Caroline Coulthard and Heather Meredith, wearing comfortable sweatshirts and jeans, relax during lunch and try to catch up on some last minute homework.

Button up for fashion! Junior Tammy Dowdy, wearing an oversized sweater, compares Chemistry notes with junior Lori Faust, who is sporting many popular buttons.

Center of attention. On Senior Dress-Up Day, Vickey McCroskey, Shannon Moye, Carrie Gillespie, Dana Higgs, Sarah Straley, and Sarah Jackson listen as Amy Baker tells of the escapades of first period.

THE WORLD WE LIVE IN

America. A year of ups and downs characterized the past year for this country. When the Space Shuttle Challenger exploded just seconds after takeoff, America wept; when U.S. planes scored a small victory over terrorism with the bombing of Libya, America cheered; and when Lady Liberty turned 100, America celebrated like never before; but then America worried when the Iran/Contra scandal left some wondering who was in charge in the White

Yes, even as individuals fought their own battles, lived their own lives, and faced their own fears, America was going through her own difficulties. Each American should use the lessons learned here in these struggles and never forget that whoever he is, he is an American.

If everything else about this year is forgotten, one memory should remain: Every day someone somewhere is being held down. The hostages, citizens of repressive societies, prisoners — not just Americans but every person who is denied his basic rights.

Flags flew at half staff as the nation mourned the loss of the Challenger and her immortal crew.

The nuclear disaster at Chernobyl in the Soviet Union heightened American fears of a similar accident here.

Mikail Gorbachev cleaned up corruption at home while stumping the U.S. abroad.

South Africa was further torn apart by racial strife while being isolated from the rest of the world.

President Reagan's power and popularity plummeted after the Iran/Contra scandal. Inset: Lt. Colonel Oliver North played key role in scandal.

B USY ODIES

Reeboks, bangle watches, hamburgers and fries, tapes, Swatch merchandise, Nerds, movie tickets, Coca-Cola sweatshirts, pizza, gasoline, albums, concert tickets, and cosmetics — with so many things to buy, where do students get money? Some beg for handouts, some get it from parents, others get it the old-fashioned way — they earn it!

Approximately 70% of all students here work. (This is a shocking statistic to many teachers, as most have stated that students never work!) Jobs include bagging groceries, pumping gas, waiting on customers, typing letters, wrapping gifts, stacking shelves, waiting tables, mowing lawns, putting up hay, answering phones, flipping burgers, and bouncing children on a knee.

The jobs differ, but the pay usually doesn't — minimum wage is $3.35 an hour. It doesn't sound like a lot, but it does pay for the "extras."

COMING HOME

Almost everyone had a part in preparing for Homecoming. Pep Club members decorated classroom doors throughout the school, and did their usual store window motiffs. Keyettes sold Homecoming mums and delivered them on Friday afternoon. Each class specially decorated a hall on Thursday and the administration chose the winners. Meanwhile, the Varsity cheerleaders adorned the lobby with streamers, balloons, and spirited signs.

The cheerleaders also sponsored dress-up days to promote enthusiasm: bandana, sweat, camouflage, and stuffed animal/jersey days were enjoyed by everyone, including teachers.

The week's events reached a peak on Friday afternoon with the pep rally and parade. Varsity and IV cheerleaders performed a skit and led spirit competition at the pep rally. The parade, consisting of 46 units, began at Maxway and wound its way down Wenonah Avenue. The Homecoming court presided over this event, riding atop open convertibles and waving to their "subjects." After the parade, students and fans scattered to later reappear at the much-awaited game.

Cruisin' in style. Stacey Baker flashes a smile for the crowd as she rides in the parade before being chosen Homecoming Queen.

Tears of joy. Senior Stacey Baker cries with happiness after being crowned Homecoming Queen.

This is a stick-up. SCA members Fortis Morse and Heather Meredith perform a skit in the parade.

New rate of inflation. Eighth graders blow up colorful balloons after school to use for decoration of their hall.

WINNING TRADITION

Homecoming was highlighted by a key New River District game with George Wythe, who came into the game with an unblemished district record. Dressed in "red on red," the team bounced back from an early Maroon touchdown to take a 14-7 lead at halftime. A smothering defense was the key, as George Wythe was stopped deep in Spartan territory on third and fourth downs with a yard to go for a first down.

Clowing around. Literary society members throw candy to the parade bystanders.

On another occasion, Chris Myers picked off a pass in Spartan territory as Brian Higgin-botham pressured the quarterback.

The "Bandana Gang" took complete command in the second half as Wythe was forced to the air. Phillip Orey kept an outstanding Maroon receiver in check, as the forward wall, led by a blitzing Sean Muldoon, applied relentless pressure on the passer. Meanwhile, the offense amassed 341 yards behind the blocking of steady performers Trey Sutphin and Todd Robertson.

Sean Muldoon nailed down the 27-7 victory in the last few minutes as he sacked the quarterback and returned the resulting fumble for a touchdown. The football team left the field with its seventh victory in the last eight years.

After the game, the varsity cheerleaders sponsored the dance. Music was done by Tony's Mobile Music and refreshments were served by the cheerleaders. The dance wrapped up at midnight, but the festitivites continued in various parties around the county.

Deck the halls. Sophomore Rob Masri helps decorate the sophomore hall with balloons.

QUEEN FOR A YEAR

S.C.A. TRANSFORMS CAFETERIA INTO FROSTED FANTASY

Tables were pushed against the wall—the scuffed tiles became a dance floor. The salt and pepper shakers were replaced by candles surrounded by evergreen boughs. The walls were draped with blue and silver garland, and dotted with cardboard ornaments bearing the names of each couple in silver glitter. Almost as if by magic, the cafeteria was transformed into a "Frosted"

Fantasy"!

Strains of "Friends and Lovers" and "Two of Hearts" filtered from the speakers of Tony's Mobil Music and dancers boogied across the tiles, snatching souvenir ornaments from the walls and tables.

At 9:30 the 1987 Snow Court was announced. Senior Dana Brumfield was crowned Snow Queen by last year's queen, Melissa Shaver.

This annual S.C.A. sponsored event ended at midnight, but the festivities continued at after-thedance parties held in many of the couples' homes.

ONCE UPON A TIME . . .

Large blue gates, overgrown with tangled ivy and pink roses, led the way to a mystical fantasy land. Once inside the gates, couples followed a columnlined walkway and entered a kingdom of stone walls covered with vines, and shimmery ponds with graceful swans and water lillies. In the distance, castles and enchanted forests could be seen. Tiny glass slippers, jeweled crowns, and flickering candles adorned gray and rose covered tables.

Suddenly, the silence and serenity of the magical scene was broken. Blasts of Bon Jovi's "You Give Love A Bad Name" blared out of huge black speakers, and red lights flashed on and off. Prom had officially begun!

Months before the actual event, juniors began selling Christmas ornaments in order to raise money. Then committees had to be formed and decisions made: music was selected, the theme was decided on, and decorations were ordered.

The Monday before Prom, juniors began meeting after school to decorate. They hung green, light blue, yellow, peach, pink, aqua, rose, and purple streamers in the center of the cafeteria and blue crepe paper on the sides. Vines were punched out and tissue posies were cut and fluffed. Castles, columns, and clocks were constructed and murals were hung. Over twenty-five hours were spent decorating, and in spite of one administrator's belief that they wouldn't finish, the juniors completed the job around two o'clock on Saturday morning. It was a lot of hard work, but when they were through, everyone agreed it was worth it. The usually bleak cafeteria and hall had been transformed into a beautiful Medieval scene.

At six o'clock on Saturday. May 16, couples began arriving to get their pictures taken. Then most went out to eat: Mountain Lake Hotel, the Marriott, the Farmhouse, and the Huckleberry Inn were all popular spots. Shortly after nine o'clock, junior class president Allan Johnson announced the seniors and they paraded around the dance floor. After more dancing, the Prom Court was crowned. The "royalty" led off the next slow dance and then the dancing resumed. When the clock overhanging the dance floor struck midnight, the couples disappeared and the magical kingdom vanished.

Crowning glory. Senior king and queen, Bryan Godwin and Carrie Gillispie, and junior prince and princess, Paul Lucas and Kim Lavinder, reign over prom.

"I dedicate my love to you . . ." Juniors Aaron Harless and Krista Baker sing "Always" at prom.

Pin up girls? Juniors Jennifer Lester and Kim Wilson hang up streamers in the cafeteria.

A pocketful of posies. Juniors Lori Faust and Tami Hedrick make tissue posies to decorate the columns and gates.

"Slow dancing . . ." Couples enjoy the dance after seniors were announced.

"I wonder who it will be." Sponsors and hostesses anxiously await the announcement of the prom court.

sonalities meshed to make life more interesting and exciting. Throughout the year, one main idea prevailed-everyone was important: Eighth graders or seniors, principals or custodians, teachers or cooks. All of these pulled together to make the Interaction of the people added a third dimension to a potentially flat experience. People made school "happen."

Your name is mud! Senior Yearbook photographer/reporter Steve Collida takes the plunge on his three wheeler.

OFF THE RECORD

How do you deal with an annoying bug? Raid? Flyswatter? These were two of the suggestions offered by teachers as ace photographer bug/reporter Steve Collida hovered about looking for a scoop.

His easy manner caught his sources off guard. "The words 'off the record' mean nothing to him," said Mr. Larry Marion. "I didn't know it was an interview. I just kept talking. Then I looked down and saw he was writing... If you don't want it printed, don't say it, or better yet, don't even think of it!"

He learned quickly the value of well-chosen words. "He never wrote a word until I made an off-the-wall comment, and, believe me, he kept coming back until I finally did," stated Mrs. Doris Lynch.

His words were well documented with photographs, miserably sharp and clear. "Every time I looked up I heard a click and a flash exploded in my face. I couldn't see anything but sparkles for ten minutes!" snapped his advisor Mrs. Betsy Wood.

Nevertheless, Steve snapped and jotted right up through the final deadline, earning the year's Photojournalism Award.

All aboard! Giles County participants in Special Olympics prepare to board the bus headed for Radford.

REKINDLING HOPE

"Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt" is the oath repeated in the opening exercises of the Special Olympics. On May 2 Radford High School was the setting of the Virginia Area 9 competition. Giles students were involved in every facet of the day from flag raising to the lighting of the torch through participation in the games.

Eighth grader Jami DiRico earned a first place in the 100 Meter race, and third places in the Softball Throw and the Standing Long Jump. Steven Griggs took a first place in the 100 Meter race and second place in the 200 Meter race and Frisbee Throw. Larry Payne, also an eighth grader, placed first in the Frisbee Throw, second in the 100 Meter race, and fourth in the Softball Throw. Eighth grader Clay Snider placed first in the Standing Long Jump, and third in the Softball Throw and 100 Meter race. Keith Hobbs, Sophomore, placed second in the Standing Long Jump, third in the Softball Throw, and fourth in the 50 Meter Dash. Virginia Whittaker, also a Sophomore, participated in the competition.

These students were brave, but were also winners by every-one's standards.

BEANIES ARE BEAUTIFUL!

Madison Mermaids, Pocahontas Pokies, Wilson Woodpeckers—where in the world could all of these people be found? The answer is obvious: Girls' State at Longwood College in Farmville, Virginia.

Each year, juniors from all over the state are chosen to spend one week during the summer participating in activities dealing with government. They also take part in choir, band, and various sports. The girls are nominated within the school by teachers and then voted on by teachers. Last summer Carrie Gillispie, Sarah Jackson, and Sarah Straley represented the school.

The participants at Girls' State are divided into cities and can hold office on the local or state level. Carrie Gillispie served as House Floor Leader on the state level while Sarah Jackson was Superintendent of Schools for the city of Wilson and Sarah Straley was the Madison Seashore Sweeper.

All of the girls enjoyed the hall decorating competitions; however, the most memorable thing about attending Girls' State seemed to be the beanies that had to be worn constantly.

"You learned to love them," said Carrie Gillispie.

"I felt weird without it on — I wanted to wear it at home when I got back," said Sarah Straley.

The time spent at Longwood taught everyone involved more than just the inner workings of government. It fostered close friendships among the participants and instilled in them a special pride in their country.

"The whole week was very patriotic. When everyone got together and sang 'America,' it gave me chills — it still does when I think about it," said Carrie Gillispie.

Girls' State lasted only a week,

Girls' State lasted only a week, but its long term affects are immeasurable.

Let's give them all a hand! Junior and senior hands model the diverse styles of class rings available to students

ON THE OTHER HAND . . .

They come in different colors, styles, and sizes; no two are exactly alike. People? Yes, but the same is true of class rings.

Yellow gold and white gold are the choices for the band. Luckily, there are a rainbow of colors for stones, ranging from pink to violet. The onyx and mother-of-pearl are rarer than others so they give a ring an original appearance.

Almost as diverse as colors are the styles. Most girls opt for the petite, elegant ring, but a few like the smaller version of the guys' rings. "I had to get it big to get everything I wanted on it," said Senior Sarah Straley.

Probably the greatest variation occurs with size. Junior Robert Jones, whose ring is a size 13 says, "My ring would probably fit some people like a belt." On the other hand (no pun intended), Junior Lori Faust's ring is a size 4½; it fits perfectly inside Robert's.

Some students go to all the trouble of choosing a ring and then seldom wear it. Senior Tony Dowdy stated, "I've had it three years, but I've only worn it three times." The main reason some did not wear theirs is that a boyfriend or girlfriend had it. There were, however, those who wore theirs every day. Senior Sarah Straley said, "I feel naked without it."

While most high school students wear, or, at least have a class ring, some hold out for a college ring.

CHECKMATE!

"Chess makes you smart," according to Rob Masri who was chosen the Top Sophomore Chess Player in the nation.

Rob began playing when he was in the fifth grade. His teacher was Mr. George Peters who encouraged youth in the county to become involved in the game. "Anybody can play the game," Rob said with a smile. "With enough practice and time one can master chess." Then he added more seriously, "One good quality that all good chess players must possess is patience." Rob said that chess required concentration and if you let your mind wander once during the two to four hour game you will be lost. When asked about the importance of chess in his life, he replied, "Chess is not just a game that you compete in like basketball or baseball. It actually helps you in life, builds the player's mental capacity and stamina. It encourages people to be the best they can be. It's an individual sport — one on one. I just hope its popularity will increase in the county."

"Look beyond the obvious move." At national chess tournament held at Pulaski High School, Sophomore Rob Masri advises younger players.

SUMMER SCHOOL?

During the summer, Melanie Moser represented the school as a participant in Governor's School held at Virginia Tech.

After being chosen by the guidance counselor, Melanie was required to write several essays and complete a lengthy application form in order to qualify. Then followed the waiting. When the reply came, Melanie remembered, "I was really excited. I couldn't wait to go."

While there, her required subjects were philosophy and The United States in a Changing World, but her area of concentration was mathematics. In addition, an hour was scheduled daily for recreation during which time she participated in volleyball and basketball—after her ankle healed. (During the beginning of the session, she sprained her ankle playing volleyball. "That's the first time I've been on crutches in my life!" she exclaimed).

Composed of a teaching staff made up of college and high school teachers, and students from around the state, Governor's School provided a learning atmosphere and opportunity to meet new and interesting people.

INSERT FLAP "A" INTO SLOT "B"

"Gentlemen, start your engines!" or was it "Gentlemen, repair your engines"? At least that's what Senior Bryan Beckner did to win the Plymouth Troubleshooting Contest.

He began by participating in the VICA contest on the district level. Placing first in this competition qualified him to go on to the state finals, the first of which was held in Virginia Beach. Here he was required to tear down a rear end and do brake work, among other tasks. He placed second in this contest.

Bryan went on to participate in the Plymouth Troubleshooting Contest held in Roanoke. Here he was required to locate and repair eighteen faults. Within seventeen minutes, all faults were corrected, a feat which earned him a first place win. As to his success in the contests, he said, "I feel that Mr. Yates deserves a lot of credit and recognition."

Planning to work in a dealership after graduation, Bryan works part-time at Hutchinson's Exxon. Although the work is hard, he said he enjoyed it and liked the people with whom he worked.

A "GROUP" OF FRIENDS

"We are the class of 1987. We are one team. We are one group. We are and always will be friends," said Salutatorian Robbie Molique during his graduation speech.

Friends — that's the first word that came to mind whenever anyone thought about the senior class. Other words came to mind too, though: fun, spirited, crazy, playful, mischievous, caring — all aptly described

Underclassmen saw them as "different" — it was always apparent that there was something special uniting the members of the senior class. According to an essay written by junior Shannon O'Brien for the SPAR-TONIAN, "They're a family of friends that care more about each other than they care about their own dreams or futures."

NOW WE TURN

Now we turn to say good-bye

After being together all these years.

My emotions are all knotted up in my throat

And a memory falls with every tear.

I can't believe it's over.

How soon it seemed to end. How can we go our seaparte

What about all our friends?

The friends who shared our joy and pain,

Who helped us when we felt low.

Their steadfast love always kept us strong

But things must change and people must grow.

Soon each will embark upon his own journey

And spread his wings and try to fly

Like a dandelion being blown in the wind.

I can't catch all the seeds, but I must try.

But for now we're all together And I know in a way we'll never part. Though separated by mountains and oceans

We'll be together in our hearts.

As we stand here today, we are one.

Closer friends we will not find.

So love each other as much as your heart will allow

And you'll have friendships that will transcend time.

It seemed we'd be together here forever.

But time is fleeting and soon is gone.

So lock your memories away in your heart

And the Class of '87 will live on.

So as you turn to say farewell And the word "good-bye" comes to your lips,

Just push it away and say "See ya' later"

Because between friends good-byes don't exist.

Melanie Moser Valedictory address June 10, 1987

A positive approach. Principal Rom Matlock bids farewell to the Class of 1987.

"See ya later." Melanie Moser laughs with classmates following graduation.

THE HOUSE THAT GVS BUILT

Once upon a time, Building Trades students constructed dog houses and storage sheds. When they realized they had exhausted their talents on these projects, they decided they needed a greater challenge. The next logical step was a house.

They selected a lot in Robin Hood Park on Caudill Street. The students, under the supervision of Mr. Ed Wilson, did all of the work and seemed to really enjoy it. One remarked, "It gets us out of school, and, besides, we're learning a lot about carpentry."

Features of this split-foyer structure include 1350 square feet of living space, a full basement, three full baths and an exterior of brick and vinyl veneer.

The total estimated building time for this project is four years. At the end of this period, the school hopes to sell the house for $70,000 and use the funds to buy another lot and build again in the same neighborhood. If all goes as planned, new residents will occupy by 1987, and all should live happily ever after!

DRIVING FORCE?

Look out for that car!" What car?" That light was red!" What light?"

You didn't give a signal for that turn!"

I didn't need to. I looked both ways and there vasn't a cop in sight."

This kind of driving won't exactly get you to Mr. Roger's Neighborhood, but it's likely to send Driver's Education teacher scrambling for an ntacid. According to behind-the-wheel instrucor Mr. Pat O'Brien, "You don't relax a second. You gotta be 100% all the time."

In P.E., tenth graders study the driving handbook published by the Division of Motor Vehicles. After 36 hours of work in the classroom, they are ligible for Behind-the-wheel instruction. Approximately 95% of the students take advantage of this offering.

This year the State Department of Drivers Edication brought in the Convincer. Students trapped into this device experienced the impact of a collision with a fixed object while traveling at 3-10 m.p.h. "I couldn't believe what a jar you get going that slow!" said one of the convinced tenth graders. Hopefully, this experience will remind young drivers of the jar you get if not strapped in.

24-38-24 A WINNING COMBINATION

- "Where's your book?"
- "It's in my locker."
- "Where's your notebook?"
- "It's in my locker."
- "Where's your pencil?"
- "It's in my locker."
- "Homework?"
- "Locker."
- "Lunch?"
- "Locker."
- "Jacket? Car? Dog? Mother? Brain?"
- "Locker."

The answer is always the same. Ask a high school student where anything is and he'll say, "In my locker." It's almost a reflex because lockers are stuffed full of everything from overdue library books to hardened gum to bread crusts. But it isn't just what's in the lockers, but also what "decorates" them. Centerfolds, Muppet stickers, Budweiser labels, pictures of a loved one, bumper strips, and the old favorite hardened gum to add some color, not to mention flavor.

A student's locker is his own little room away from home. It will usually give an idea of how neat or messy his bedroom is.

MOVE OVER, PICASSO

Squadrons of talented art students have descended upon the empty walls throughout the school. Armed with palette, paints, and brushes, future Michalangelos and Picassos, set out to transform the institutional green into masterpieces.

It all started two years ago when Mrs. Karen Yolton asked four and five year art students to paint a mural on her wall. The castle was her idea, but the work was clearly that of Mr. David Chapman's students. "This project should be different from the others because shading and contrasting are being used," commented Mr. Chapman. Plans are to complete this project during the summer of '87

Mrs. Scarborough was intrigued and asked Shannon O'Brien to paint a mural on her wall. Shannon, taking her idea from an advertisement, worked on it during class as a graded semester project. Sherry Terry and Jennifer Eaton started a mural, "Art Express," on the opposite wall and expect to complete it in six weeks.

The most recent painting is being done in Mrs. Rowland's room. The "muralist," Matt Albert, finished this prehistoric scene just before Christmas break.

Given the opportunity to express themselves, these students decorated rather than defaced classrooms, and revolutionized learning spaces throughout the school.

B8ABFE AISI8N

"You have someone to talk to," Valen and Tyree West agree is the biggest advantage to having a twin; however, a look-alike poses problems, too. Getting into fights and being called by the other's name seem to be the main complaints.

We have four sets of identical twins this year—a large number for such a small school. Approximately one in every 96 births results in twins and this tendency appears hereditary. Besides the West twins, there are the Criggers, the Phillips, and also the Darnells. Those interviewed all said that they have thought about switching class schedules, but none have ever carried out this scheme. Teachers, Beware!

INVASION BY THE COOKIE MONSTERS

The halls were empty; classes had begun. Suddenly, the back door opened and 28 tiny sneaker-clad feet padded down the hall. A muffled giggle echoed momentarily but was instantly silenced. The invasion was complete. A column of fourteen preschoolers snaked its way to Mrs. Gautier's Family Planning class where students welcomed them. There, they constructed Thanksgiving turkeys from apples, raisins, and marshmallows. This activity complete, students zipped, tied, and muffled each child, in readiness for the second leg of their exploration: the nursing department of the Vocational school.

There, youngsters were introduced to various teaching aids, including a model revealing organs and muscles. "Gross!" was the disgusted reaction of one 4year-old. Others seemed more concerned with assigning a suitable name to the mannequin. Each child was fitted with a stethescope and instructed as to its use. Immediately began a frantic scramble to check the vital signs of everyone in the room. When asked later the purpose of the stethescope, one aspiring medical student answered, "Oh, that's what you use to beat hearts!"

The visitors were rewarded for their attentiveness when at the end of the tour they "rode" wheelchairs, guerneys, and mechanical beds. Following these activities, the children were loaded into crafts to return to pre-school, not to invade again for another eight years.

Mrs. Dowdy introduces visitors to mannequin.

R. Masri unites J. Johnson and M. Gillespie in mock union.

TYING THE KNOT

(A SLIPKNOT, THAT IS!)

The library was the setting on Friday, October 24, 1986, for the ceremony uniting in mock marriage, Millie Gillespie and Johnny Johnson. The "reverend" Rob Masri officiated, and the bride was escorted to the alter and given in marriage by her "father," Marty Carr. Michelle Eaton was maid of honor and Chris Blevins was best man.

Following the simple ceremony attended by a few friends and fellow classmates, a reception was held in room 104. Catering was provided by Home Economics students. The bride is presently a sophomore at Giles High School; the groom is a junior there. Photographic coverage was provided by Photojournalism student Steve Collida.

This event was a project planned by Mrs. Gautier's Marriage and Family class. Preparations for the wedding included planning the budget for such an occasion.

"It was really nice, and a . . . sobering experience for every student involved," remarked Steve Collida.

Cut and paste on the dotted line. Mrs. Sonafelt, senior Amy Baker, sophomore Rob Masri, and junior Allan Johnson work on paste-ups for the newspaper.

book out — here we come! English MACC team members, Mrs. Yolton nd Mrs. Sonafelt, walk to their quarer-final match against Narrows.

INSPIRATION TO ALL

"This is Gumby — he's what you would call a model student because he always raises his hand. This is his friend Pokey. He sees everything because he has eyes on both sides of his head. When they appear on my desk — BEWARE! That means trouble is coming."

Every eleventh grade English student who has had Mrs. Tracy Sonafelt is familiar with these words. Her students soon learn what a Gumby fanatic she is; however, they also learn quickly that Gumby isn't her only love — people and literature — in that order — come first on her list.

One of the first things a student notices about Mrs. Sonafelt is her warm and loving personality. She really cares about her students and this is readily apparent. Her cheerful smiles, sympathetic pats on the back, and affectionate hugs are always available when a student needs some encouragement or cheering up at the end of a long day. Going out of her way to help her students with any type of problem is something she enjoys doing. "She's more than my sixth period teacher — I consider her as one of my best friends. I can talk to her about anything without feeling uncomfortable," said junior Tami Hedrick.

Not only is Mrs. Sonafelt a terrific person, she is an outstanding teacher as well. She has a special knack of bringing even the most boring American literature to life. By using a variety of teaching methods, such as group work, in-depth class discussions, review games, and even art work, she makes learning "fun." Since she sees each of her students as individuals, she encourages them to think independently and then express their ideas. "She's just like one of us. Some teachers talk down to you and don't like you to express your opinion if it's different from theirs — she treats us like we're on the same level she is. That's why everyone likes her," said junior Allan Johnson.

The SPARTONIAN and the English MACC team have also flourished under the guidance of Mrs. Sonafelt. The SPARTONIAN has become so popular around school that students can hardly wait for the next issue. Coaching the English MACC team is another of her joys. Her lively discussions with the MACC judges during appeals are looked forward to with great anticipation each week by team members (but not by the judges!).

In her spare time (which she doesn't have much of), she enjoys reading (don't all English teachers?), listening to music, singing, and watching movies with her husband, Jeff. The Sonafelts have lived in Pearisburg for three years, but she's only been teaching here for a year and a half; however, because of her outgoing personality, she's made a place for herself in many people's hearts. "She's so friendly — I feel as if I've known her for years even though we've only been riding to school together since September. I'm as close to her now as I am to people I've known for twenty years," said Ms. Mary Beth Holton.

Mrs. Sonafelt is an only child and she spent her early school years in Michigan. Later, she returned to her native state of Virginia and graduated fourth in her high school class. She attended James Madison for four years and then graduated as Valedictorian with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. Shortly after graduating, she married Jeff Sonafelt, a Lutheran minister. She served as a Graduate Teaching Assistant at the University of South Carolina and then at Radford University before she took her job at Giles.

Because of the respect, admiration, and love she inspires in her students, the 1987 SHIELD is dedicated to Mrs. Tracy Sonafelt.

I can't believe these people! Mrs. Sonafelt returns to her seat after unsuccessfully appealing a question at the Floyd MACC match.

A BLONDE BOMBSHELL?

"I always wanted a daughter, maybe I got one at last. He did have pretty legs, didn't he?" Bruce's father, Cedric Frazier said.

On the night of October 21st, Bruce Frazier was crowned Ms. Harvest Moon — an award that he never dreamed of receiving. Wearing a multi-colored Jantzen maillot swimsuit, he paraded across the stage and was truly the epitome of beauty. He also wore a blonde wig, bright orange lipstick, and gold hoop earrings.

When asked what made him want to be in it, his reply was: "The contest was something different. One of the ladies in the Women's Club told me about it. I was just doing it for fun.'

Presently, Hollywood hasn't called him, but everyone has to start somewhere.

Bruce Frazier wasn't the only person from the school who participated in the pageant. Mr. Larry Marion was a contestant, but did not fare as well as Bruce Frazier. Doris Lynch also served as a judge.

"I never laughed so hard in my life. In a couple of categories, it was hard to decide between the pregnant bride and the cheerleader," said Mrs. Doris Lynch.

"It was for a good cause (proceeds went to a scholarship for vocational students, the March of Dimes, and various other service organizations) — a bunch of guys just got together and had lots of fun. I don't want to sound too pleased though or people will think I enjoy dressing up in women's clothing," commented Mr. Larry Marion.

And the winner is ... Bruce "Brenda" Frazier wears the crown as he is congratulated by Emcee Harold

IS THERE A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?

The new resident Ph.D. at school is none other than Dr. Mark, Dr. Somers, that is. He can't set a broken bone, he can't read an EKG, and he can't take your blood pressure. What he can do is calculate the distance, down to a centimeter, that a satellite is from the earth. Doc Somers can't really do this, of course, but to receive his doctorate in mathematics he had to try to prove that Albert Einstein's Theory of General Relativity could work. It took Dr. Somers nearly eight years to finish his thesis, but to accurately test whether his proof is valid he must enter huge amounts of data into a mainframe computer. Access to this type of computer is virtually impossible to gain in the United States. After finishing this awesome undertaking, Dr. Somers had to return to the University of Maryland for orals, conducted by a five-member board of Ph.D.'s in mathematics. Passing this test with flying colors, Dr. Somers received his doctorate.

After his wife earns her degree in Veterinary Medicine from VPISU, the Somers plan to move to Louisiana where he plans to enter the world of industry.

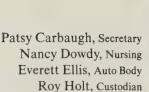

On call? Dr. Mark Somers prepares to call roll at beginning of class.

VACATIONAL SCHOOL?

Where else can students spend the entire period out of their desks, moving around the classroom, tinkering with objects scattered all over the place? Or, where else do students get the opportunity to wash their cars, style their hair, or give each other permanents during class? In what other classes do students wear masks and big, funny glasses, learn to strip automobiles, draw pictures all period, and make regular trips out of town? Vacational school? Not on your life! Although it sounds like a vacation from school, it is anything but a vacation from learning. This description refers to the on-the-job training offered to students enrolled in programs at Vocational School. While escaping the traditional classroom setting, students gained valuable experience in areas relating to vocational education as well as skills needed for dealing with people. Their classroom was the county, where they learned and served.

Winners — that's what each sports team was. Players showed it in their attitudes as well as in their performances.

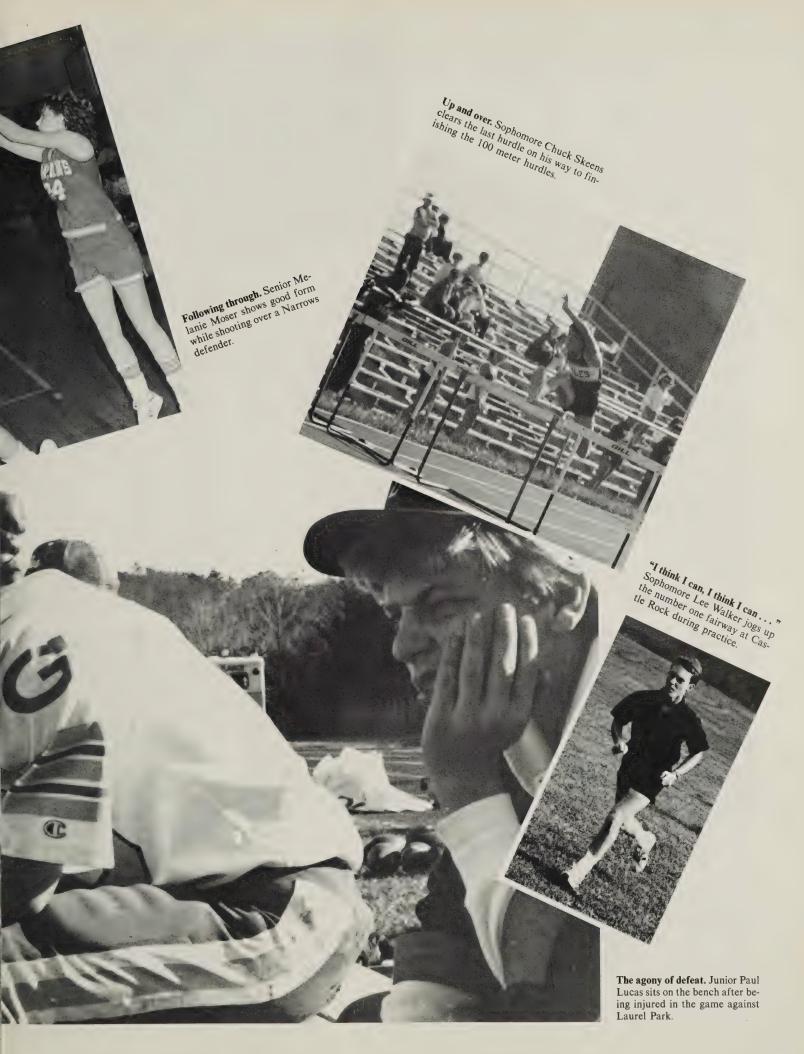

On the fields, tracks, greens, and courts, they always gave it their all and their records showed this enthusiasm: The football team went to the state semi-finals. The basketball team finished second in the district tournament and went to regionals for the first time ever. The boys' and girls' track teams sent people to the state meet. The baseball team won the district and the first regional playoff game in their history.

SPORTS

Sports participants also were tough mentally — they had to be. During the course of the year, they contended not only with opposing teams, but also with screaming coaches, break-of-dawn practices, extremely high and low temperatures, and their own slumps. Being a Giles Spartan and carrying out the winning traditions was not always easy, but team members continuously showed themselves capable of this difficult task.

WINGING IT!

This year's Spartan Football season started with a bang as Keith Johnson burst off-tackle for a record breaking 99 yard touchdown run on the Spartan's first offensive possession. Keith's 218 yards rushing helped provide the 14-6 victory over Grundy the first of five Southwest District opponents.

In the season's home opener, a swarming Spartan defense turned a close game into a 26-8 rout as a Marvin Murray fumble recovery and a Kyle Cunningham pass interception led to 14 Spartan points in the last few minutes of the first half.

Led by Marvin Farley, a "pursue and destroy" defense forced five turnovers in a shutout victory over archrival Narrows. Meanwhile, our offense ground out 27 points for our fifth consecutive win over the Green Wave.

In the fourth week, Kyle Cunningham galloped through Indian territory for 120 yards behind the blocking of Tim Gillispie, as the potent offense massacred defensiveminded Blacksburg in a 26-21 vcitory.

In week five, Radford edged the Spartans 6-0 in a defensive standoff between two unbeaten teams.

The Spartans exhibited a "never quit" attitude the following week by bouncing back to take a 27-7 homecoming victory over George Wythe, as Sean Muldoon led the all out team effort with 13 tackles.

The feared Single Wing offense showed why it has led the New River District every year since 1979 in a 26-12 victory over Christiansburg in game seven. Keith Johnson bulled his way to 212 yards, and the offense exploded for 390 total yards and 18 first downs.

You have to start somewhere. The winning season begins August 11 on the practice field above the school.

The Bandanna Express unleashed a precision passing attack in game eight that combined with a turnover free running game to steamroll eventual state champion Tazewell by a score of 24-12. Marty Meredith hauled in four passes for 59 yards and led a hard-hitting offensive line that consistently manhandled the much larger Bulldogs. Eddie Coffey recovered a fourth quarter fumble for a touchdown to secure the best overall team victory of the season.

Ricky Williams recovered a fumble to lead a gutty goalline stand that turned the Carroll County game around, while Keith Johnson's 260 yards rushing led a steadily improving offense in a 33-18 victory over the Cavaliers.

Tiger Williams provided the margin of victory with a 29 yard field goal in a hardfought 17-14 win over Richlands in the regular season finale. With a record of nine wins and only one loss, Spartans were ranked among the top ten Group AA teams in the state.

The Spartans completed a sweep of the Southwest District with an impressive 26-14 win over Lebanon in the first round of the Region IV Division Two playoffs. With only a one touchdown lead, Mark Croy and Jeff Psathas put us in command by clearing the way for Keith Johnson to score on a fourth and goal screen pass from the 27 yard line.

The passing combination of Adrian Williams to Kyle Cunningham, which accounted for 80 yards, ignited a Spartan explosion that proved too much for Graham as the red and blue won the Region IV Division Two Championship game 33-13.

Flawless Spartan execution in the last six games had resulted in only three turnovers, but four giveaways against a good Laurel Park team led to a 19-6 loss in the state semi-finals. The Spartan football team completed the season with eleven wins and only two losses, the second best record in the history of Giles High School.

"This team accomplished as much as any team I've coached in terms of reaching their potential. Although not blessed with great individual talent overall, they proved week after week what can be achieved through proper execution, great effort, and exceptional teamwork!" stated Coach Ragsdale, summarizing the past season.

JV DOMINATES THE NEW RIVER DISTRICT

"Our junior varsity team had an outstanding season!" said varsity coach Steve Ragsdale. The fans weren't expecting too much from the JV team at the beginning of the season; nevertheless, they proceeded to live up to their predecessors' record as they went undefeated, leaving fans and opponents in awe. For Coach Kelly—the winningest coach in the school—this season brought his career record to a 49 and 8 record over a period of eight years! "He's a number one coach. He's good at everything—play-calling, executing from the sidelines—and he doesn't lose his cool so he knows what's going on. Everybody can't do that!" were the comments of his colleague Pat O'Brien.

Ably assisting Coach Kelly was Bruce Frazier, working with the backs and ends. When asked why they did so well, Coach Frazier answered, "I think they did stupendous because of the closeness of the team on and off the field."

The team experienced various high points during the season. Many players stated that beating Radford 24 to 16 was the best game of the season. Several also added that they enjoyed working with Coaches Kelly and Frazier. After the season was over, Stacy Croy, expressing the thoughts of the team, simply said, "I wish we were still playing."

Coach Ragsdale stated that these young men had been well prepared to continue the "winning tradition of Spartan Football, and I am very eager to coach them on the varsity level..."

IT'S NOT WHETHER YOU WIN OR LOSE...

The 8th grade team tried very hard this year, with a spirit rivaling that of veteran Spartan players. Although their season record wasn't impressive, they improved with every game.

Led by coaches Witt and Swope, the eighth graders learned the ins and outs of high school football.

Despite their losses the youngest members of the Bandana Express hung in there every week. Sometimes it was merely a matter of not converting some beautiful plays to points. Often they were opposing larger, more mature players, and they did an excellent job considering this fact.

"... their enthusiasm indicated that they enjoyed being a part of Spartan Football. I am looking forward to watching them develop into quality football players here at Giles," said Varsity Football Coach Steve Ragsdale when asked to comment on the eighth grade squad.

ALL WORK AND A LITTLE PLAY!

"Go! Fight! Victory tonight! ... Spartans, let's go fight!" These words resounded in New River District gyms and on football fields during the year. When spirit lagged in the stands, cheerleaders entreated fans to rally behind the players. But Cheerleaders' duties weren't restricted to game time. In order to prepare for this year, Varsity and JV squads attended a five-day camp at VPI and SU. While there, they won trophies for "most spirited," and several ribbons for cheer competition and a pom-pom routine. During football season, the girls decorated halls before games, the lobby for Homecoming, and the football players' lockers. They held a Homecoming bonfire before the JV game on Thursday night, and sponsored a dance following the Varsity game.

The same girls prepared for football games by practicing twice a week after school until 5 p.m.; during basketball season they practiced once a week. On days during both seasons they stayed after school making signs to be used during the games, or to be hung on the walls.

The Varsity squad had only one returning veteran, Shannon O'Brien, but this fact didn't hinder them. On the job, they appeared to have several years' experience behind those kicks and cheers.

EE IME

This season, the Golf Team set out to surpass last year's finish at second place in the district. The season started perfectly with a win at the Wintergreen Invitational held in Winton, Virginia.

As the season progressed, the victories did not come as easily. The team dropped two of their next six matches.

Dedicated to doing their best, members practiced nearly 72 holes a week under the supervision of Coach Bob Wilburn. As usual, Castle Rock provided a place to practice and also acted as the team's home course.

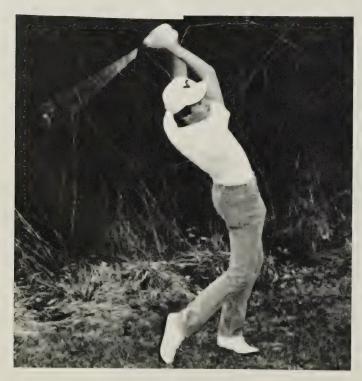

The team finished their season by placing fourth in the District Tournament with a 22-8 record. They lacked a person shooting in the 70's which they had had in all previous matches.

"It was cool, a really good experience. Maybe some day I can make a career out of it," said Sophomore, Glenn Meyers.

Junior, James Price, paced the team with a 77.8 average. Strong contributions were made by the four Seniors on the team: David Edwards, Brad Bayless, Andy Wilburn, and Steve Collida, who missed advancing to the Regional Tournament by one stroke.

"The Golf Team really deserves a lot of credit. They don't get enough recognition for the amount of work they do," said Senior football player, Mark Croy.

Into the swing of things. Junior, James Price hits out of the number twelve rough in a match against Radford.

Blasting out. Senior, Brad Bayless hits out of the trap on the eighteenth hole. Giles was edged out by Blacksburg 311-313.

The hole perspective. Senior, Steve Collida putts for a par on the ninth hole at Castle Rock. Giles won the match against Radford.

CROSS COUNTRY

REBUILDING YEAR A SUCCESS

"We all felt good about the year." This feeling, expressed by coach Jim Couch, was the concensus of the cross-country team. The team, even though inexperienced, succeeded with a 3-3 record. Only three runners from previous years returned, but seven new runners joined to fill the gap. These new runners definitely succeeded. Doug Phillips, new to cross-country, finished first in every race, and Allen Woods, also new, averaged third. Rob Molique, Rob Masri, and Lee Walker, the three returning runners, rounded out the top five, averaging second, fourth, and fifth respectively.

This was Coach Couch's first year coaching cross-country, but even so he led the team in its rebuilding year. He was the person mainly responsible for recruiting the seven new runners. Couch has big plans for the team. "There's no reason we can't have a state cross-country team. All we need is consistant coaching, community support, and cheerleaders!"

Doug Phillips was the big success story of the year. The summer before the season, he ran every week, preparing. During the season, in practice and in races, Phillips consistantly finished first, usually ahead of the other runners by several minutes. You can be sure he felt good about his year!

He's a fun coach to 'run around with.'

"If the coach is ahead of you, then it makes you want to run faster. You don't want the coach to get ahead of you!" This attitude pushes the runners to give 110%.

"It starts with the coach," said coach Couch. It certainly did as the coach ran everyday with the runners, constantly offering encouragement and support. "Unless you have the desire to run with the guys you can't be a good coach."

He enjoyed all of the other runners. "They're spontaneous," he said. Running with the other guys... "dispells the myth that running is not fun."

Even though this was Coach Jim Couch's first year coaching cross country, he sparked the team to a successful season. With only three returning runners to build the program upon, he recruited seven new outstanding runners, more than replacing last year's losses. Obviously, this man doesn't enjoy running alone.

Leadership. Coach Jim Couch became the new leader of cross-country.

NEVERFAILING TEAM SPIRIT

Can anything good come out of a season of disappointing losses? This team proved it can: never failing team spirit! Although they managed to win only two of their games, most of their games were lost by a narrow margin. Despite this unimpressive record, players felt that the team improved through hard work and the constant support of the coach who worked with the team both on and off the court. Her neverending enthusiasm inspired players to give their best in times of defeat.

Top-scorer Mandy Evans was voted First Team New River District and was rated seventh out of twenty top scorers in Timesland. Melanie Moser, second top scorer, held the record for outside shots. This should be enough proof that a losing season isn't necessarily a disappointing one!

LET'S GO TO THE HOOP!

The J.V. team faced a new season with a new coach and a new way of doing things. Adapting well, they started off with three wins in a row but then faltered by winning only three more of their remaining thirteen. The dedication of the players and support from the coach and fans inspired the team to improve game after game. Tina Tickle and April Wilson both eighth graders, led the team in scoring, while April Wilson and Marjorie McGuire led the team in rebounding. Halfway through the season, the team lost a very valuable player, Leigh Gladney, who moved away. This year the J.V. team started off well and ended well by winning theree additional games at the end of the season.

LONG SHOTS

The school underwent many changes throughout the year and the basketball court was no exception. Coach Steve Ragsdale decided to retire and dedicate his time strictly to football. Previous Junior Varsity coach Rusty Kelley took over the job and propelled the team to their first appearance in a regional playoff game.

"I was pretty excited about taking over. I've always wanted to coach basketball on the Varsity level. Although it seemed a sudden change to a lot of people, I was kind of expecting it from some talks I had with him (Ragsdale)."

After losing the two top scorers and rebounders to graduation, the season couldn't have started more perfectly. Giles was 100 percent after their first two games. Although the team played some very exciting basketball in the next few weeks, the victories just didn't seem to come. They only acquired four more wins by the end of the regular season. The trio of Andy Dooley (11.3 ppg), Kelly Munsey (11.4 ppg), and Marvin Murray (11.2 ppg and 7.2 rpg) led the team during the regular season. The tournament provided them with a second chance.

The team went into the New River District Tournament, which was held in Virginia Tech's Cassell Coliseum, as the sixth seed. They played like a team on a mission.

First, they knocked off third seed Carroll County, 73-61. They shot 56% from the field and made 9-11 free throws to seal the upset victory.

"Anytime you play Giles, they never play badly," Carroll County's assistant coach Mart Quesenberry states.

After a few days off, the team was up against rival George Wythe, once again playing exceptionally well. They shot 66% from the field and senior guard Steve Collida went 8-14 in the fourth quarter from the charity stripe to seal yet another victory, 70-68. Channel 7 News considered the game as the "upset of the year." Senior Andy Dooley had a different conception: "I was thinking we were going to win the whole time.'

On the night of the Championship game, the magic seemed to wear off. The team, which had shot a sizzling average of 61% in the previous two games, was held to 30% against Radford. Giles' hopes of their first Tournament Championship were squelched by the loss.

Following the game, an awards ceremony was held during which Giles was awarded the New River District Tournament Runner-Up trophy and several individuals were recognized. Senior Andy Dooley and junior Kelly Munsey were both chosen for the All-Tournament team while Andy Dooley also received Honrable Mention in the district. Senior Marvin Murray was chosen for the Second Team All New River District.

On the third day of March, 1987, the basketball team made history. They represented Giles for the first time ever in a regional playoff game. They played Graham and lost 51-33.

"A lot of people said we shouldn't have been here in the first place, but I think we proved that we really did belong," coach Rusty Kelley said after the game.

DEFENSE - THE NAME OF THE GAME

"At the beginning of the year, our goals were to have a winning season and to make it to the JV tournaments, and they did both," reflected Coach Bill Mance. The JV Basketball team worked hard for this winning season, finishing with a 10-9 record. This was Mance's first coaching season, and the players considered him a good coach.

Two outstanding players made important contributions to the winning season. Rhett Butler was top scorer and Chris Widrig was top rebounder.

The players seemed to have a good feeling about the season when it was over. "Even though we turned the ball over too many times, we still had a good season," commented John Hunt.

The JV team is a stepping stone where players get their basic training for the Varsity team. This team, like the Varsity team, stressed defense as the name of the game. They gained much experience, a factor which contributes to the strength of the Varsity team, as previous teams have proven.

WHEN THE GOING GETS TOUGH . . .

This year, as in every year, the eighth grade team was made up of new faces — including that of the coach. Coach C. G. Thomas took over the position of head coach after Coach Bruce Frazier retired from the team to get ready for baseball season.

Being outsized in every

ence through the coaching of Anne Wheeler and Cindy McGuire, herself a former volleyball player. Snow created a problem, causing games to be cancelled or rescheduled at the last minute. A few games were even rematched on weekends. But this inconvenience did not discourage the team. "This year's team was one of the closest knit bunch of girls," remarked Coach Wheeler. The team lost seven seniors, but not their enthusiasm. "I had a lot of fun this year—more than any other," commented junior Melissa Cumbee. And that's what really counts.

MAKING TRACKS

Each afternoon practice began with a general workout, then those involved in specific events did individual drills. "We had practice after practice before we ever had a meet. Every time one was scheduled it had to be cancelled or postponed because of bad weather," complained sophomore Chuck Skeens. Nevertheless, once the season got under way, the Varsity boys' track team made up for lost time, finishing fourth in the district. This record could be attributed primarily to the performances of senior Eddie Coffey with the shot put, senior Keith Johnson with the discus, and All-Region competitors senior Marvin Murray in the long jump, high jump, and triple jump; and junior Scottie Eaves in the 100 and 200 meter race.

This year's season was dedicated to the memory of Coach Miles Jackson who season.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK

"All those hard practices paid off," said sophomore Pam Williams. And so they did. Led by All-State high jumper, Krista Baker, the Varsity girls posted another successful season finishing up with a 6-1 record. School records were set by senior Tonja Eaves in the shot put, by junior Krista Baker in the high jump and triple jump, and by juniors Bendy Farewell, Vicki Hendricks and sophomores Pam Williams and Carol Nester in the 1600 meter relay. The hard work and determination displayed by this year's team helped keep alive the fine tradition of the girl's track team and set an example for future teams to follow.

STRONG BEGINNINGS ONE STEP AT A TIME!

Characterized by Coach Kelly as "easy to work with and spirited," the eighth grade girls' track team completed their first season in impressive fashion by capturing the New River District Championship. School records were broken by Cindy Howell in the 800 meter, April Wilson in the high jump, and by Missy Mills, Makeia Stewart, Paula Suttle and Jo Hardy in the mile relay. All fourteen team members scored during the season, marking a strong beginning for these young atheletes.

The eighth grade boys' team was composed of thirteen determined athletes. Lacking depth due to the small turnout, the team was unable to accomplish many team goals, and finished sixth in the district; however, all team members contributed plenty of hard work and showed marked improvement. Brian Pfister was the team's high scorer during the regular season, participating in the long jump, the 300 meter relay, and both the 100 and 200 yard dashes.

BEATING THE ODDS

Third place — that's how the Varsity baseball team was picked to finish in several pre-season polls. District champions — that's what the team was at the end of the season! By roaring out of the gate and never looking back, the team posted an 11-1 district record and enjoyed the finest season in the school's history.

"Our juniors are going to have to come through for us," Coach Bruce Frazier stated in a pre-season interview. "Pitching will also be a key for us this year."

Juniors did come through for the team by filling up to seven of the nine starting positions at different times, and returning senior Will McLean provided the bulk of the pitching chores by amassing a 7-1 record and an ERA of 1.64.

The team started their district schedule by playing the two teams that were predicted to finish ahead of them in the pre-season polls. Many heads started to turn after the team polished off their opponents handly. With these important wins under their belt, the team was on their way to only the school's second district baseball championship.

Practice, as in every competitive sport, was the key.

The team practiced nearly every day that there wasn't a game — rain or shine! A batting cage, located in the gym, allowed team members to sharpen up on their batting skills during the foul-weathered days. During the times that the team was able to get outside, they practiced on their fielding by running through various game situations and batting with coach Bruce Frazier on the mound.

Going into the District Tournament seeded first, the team received a first round bye. They defeated Christiansburg by a score of 13-9 before falling to George Wythe.

During the first round of the Region Tournament, the team had to play Virginia High, a team which had been state runner-ups the previous two years. They were also the team that knocked the Spartans out of the regional tournament two years ago. Down four runs going into the fifth inning, the team rallied to take a lead that they would never relinquish. History was made as the team won their first regional game.

In the second round regional game, the team had to meet Richlands, a team that had already been defeated twice by Giles. Up seven runs after the top of the first inning, the team was in a commanding position — or so they thought.

"I knew we weren't home yet," said Coach Frazier.

The players then watched as their lead dwindled away to nothing at the end of the first inning. They then watched as Richlands pulled away. The Varsity baseball team finished their season with a record setting 15-4 mark!

After the season was over, the team met after school and voted for three awards. The Spartan Award, given to the player who shows the most hustle and desire, was given to Slater Atkins. The Most Valuable Player, given to the player who was most valuable to the team, was given to Will McLean, and the team captains were Andy Wilburn and Steve Collida

Several other players were awarded honors by coaches from the area for District and Region play: Juniors Audie Stevers, First Team District as well as Honorable Mention Region: Slater Atkins, Second Team District; Marty Meredith, Honorable Mention District; Seniors Andy Wilburn, First Team District, Second Team Region; Steve Collida, First Team District, Second Team Region; Will McLean, First Team District, Second Team Region. Bruce Frazier was also awarded the honor of "Coach of the Year" in the district.

The year concluded with a picnic at the home of assistant coach Sammy Atkins.

A big bear hug? Coach Bruce Frazier hugs senior pitcher Will McLean after defeating Christiansburg to become the District Champions.

CRACK OF THE BAT

Smack! The ball leaves the bat and then rockets over the right field fence. Fans scream, players cheer, and the opponents hang their heads. Sound familiar? It should — this is what went on during the J.V. baseball season.

They finished their season with a fantastic 9-3 record and combined for a .273 batting average, 97 hits, and 60 RBI's. Sophomore Benjie Pennington, with a .400 batting average and 18 hits, and ninth grader Paul Evans, with a .359 batting average and 14 hits, led the team during the year. Leading the team in RBI's were sophomores Stevie Wilson and Benjie Pennington with 12 and 11 respectively.

Throughout their season, the team showed they could play in tight situations — of their nine wins, four were won by three runs or less. The biggest win of the season was a 17-1 victory over Radford.

"It was a lot of hard work, but our record made it all worth while," said sophomore Benjie Pennington.

TEAM NETS VALUABLE LEARNING EXPERIENCE

A stroke in time. Senior Carrie Gillispie makes smashing return.

The tennis team had five returning members to lead them in their season record of 2-11. Coach C. G. Thomas started the year out by showing team exercise techniques to improve their game. He also required thirty minute drills before each practice. "I feel these drills have helped every member," commented Coach Thomas. Cunningham West, a junior ranked number three on the squad, said, "Even though we didn't have a fantastic season, I've really improved my game and plan to knock 'em dead next year."

Elizabeth Jackson, a sophomore, discussed the fact that tennis was a co-ed team. "It's rough, but a challenge. Most of the guys I've played don't take me serious, but that just makes me try harder."

The team lost only one senior player at the end of this season — Carrie Gillispie. A third year member of the team, Carrie commented, "I really have enjoyed myself this season, and my game is at its peak."

Although the record didn't prove this season to be a smashing success, team members could all agree that invaluable experience was the net gain.

SOCK IT TO THEM

"This team is a team of the future." This statement, made by coach Jim Couch, gave an optimistic appraisal of Giles High's first soccer team. Coach Jeff Rush said, "I definitely think this team has potential. Our record doesn't reflect our ability." Although the team went 3-6-1 their first season, it was termed as a very good beginning by Coach Couch.

The players performed superbly as a team, but this was made possible by excellent individual play. Criag Gibson, voted Best Offensive Player, was the leading scorer with seven goals on the year, but this offensive playing was made possible through the efforts of the defense. Stacy Croy was a major part of this defense. Every game he put in consistantly physical playing, intimidating opponents. For this he was voted Best Defensive Player. Chris Widrig at keeper was named MVP for his remarkable goalkeeping. Over the course of the season, he made over 150 saves. In the opinion of the coaches, the future of soccer at Giles looks bright.

Let's twist again . . . Junior Josh Osborne clears the ball in the midfield in the match with Christiansburg. Moving right along. Freshman Craig Gibson, offensive player of the year, dribbles the ball upfield in competition with Christiansburg.

TAKE TWO PICTURES AND CALL ME IN THE MORNING

"Your captions aren't tucked in and this page lacks dominance. You'll have to do it over."

"What else is new?"

"Mrs. Wood, where are my pictures?"

"We took 'em but there wasn't any film in the camera."

"Has anybody seen Bob Tavenner?"

"He was sick, wrecked his car, and has recently moved to a new address."

"Who's this kid?"

"I don't know, but he looks familiar. He either rides my bus or goes to my church."

"Mrs. Wood, where are my pictures?"

"I sent 'em off two weeks ago."

"Three weeks ago!"

I can top that one! Senior Beth Fields and junior Tammy Dowdy take a break from identifying and sorting underclass pictures. "Have you called Bob Tavenner yet?"

"Yeah, but he gave me the wrong number and somebody in a nightclub answered."

"Mrs. Wood, where are all the croppers? And my pictures?"

"Mark has your pictures and he's absent."

"Where are Chris and Allen — and, Steve Collida, where did you get all that toilet tissue?"

"What are we gonna do? The file cabinet is jammed and all our materials and pictures are in there!"

Well, the sponsor bullied open the cabinet; members located pictures, hassled sponsors and coaches for copy, snapped each other mercilessly, and produced a pictorial record of the year's events.

By the way, has anyone seen Bob Travenner?

EXTRA! EXTRA! READ ALL ABOUT IT!

Many changes have occurred this year, one of them being the frequency with which the newspaper was published. For the first time in a long time, a newspaper appeared almost monthly. When asked about the classroom situation, junior Melinda Martin responded, "We are more like a family than a class." The feeling was mutual among the other staff members. They all seemed to experience a common bond because something as big as a school newspaper required a joint effort. "You can't rely on just one person; we all have to work together," said editor, senior Amy Baker.

One of the most talked about sections of the SPARTONIAN was the "H.R." advice column. It was special because all questions were answered by Mr. Chapman's human relations class (another new addition to the curriculum). Before anything in this column was published, it was first screened, leaving the staff responsible for what they printed.

Of everyone interviewed the two points most touched upon were the feeling of involvement and an improvement in their writing skills. Melinda Martin summed it up when she said, "It has helped my writing ability and has made me more involved with the events around Giles High School." Other reporters claim that they got to know teachers and students better through interviews.

When asked about the relationship between the staff and their advisor, Mrs. Tracy Sonafelt, the response was overwhelmingly positive. Everyone seemed to get along with her. She has a rare ability to allow a relaxed atmosphere and maintain control in the classroom.

For the future they hope for more funds, more support from the schoolboard, and perhaps their own printing press. But for now, the SPARTONIAN is going strong. It has been accepted by the students and is widely read. In the immortal words of senior Trey Sutphin, "...heck of a job ... they get after it, and that's what I like."

The big payoff! Senior Michelle Perdue sells SPARTONIAN to Jay Frazier.

MACC-NIFICENT!

The MACC team set out to surpass last year's third place regular season finish and first place tournament finish; in spite of the new format, they did just that. Due to the dominance of a few teams last year, total team scores were not kept, but individual team scores were. Ten first place trophies were awarded and Giles captured six of them. "A lot of people think it's a bunch of know-it-alls getting together and don't think it could be any fun, but it is — I love it!" said junior Lori Faust.

During the regular season, the team set several records. In a match against Auburn, they scored a conference-high of 400 points. A school record of 100 points was also set by the English team in the same match. In eight out of nine matches, they went over 300 points (299 in the other) and averaged 328 points per week.

By the end of the regular season, Giles had captured four out of five first place trophies. Finishing in first place positions were: Math, who averaged 69 points per week; Science, who averaged 56 points per week; Social Studies, who averaged 77 points per week; and All-Around, who averaged 57 points per week. English, averaging 69 points per week, ended the season in third place.

After a two week break from the regular season, the MACC tournament was held at Radford University on April 23. The competition began at 9:00 a.m., and by the time it was over at 10:00 p.m., all of the participants and coaches were emotionally and physically drained.

The All-Around team was in action first, but lost to Floyd by only 4 points. "I was upset that we lost — we shouldn't have, but it did make me determined not to lose again," said junior Tami Hedrick.

After the All-Around competition, the other teams began their matches in various sites on the campus. On their way to the finals, the English team defeated Narrows and Shawsville. The Math team also had no problem eliminating Floyd and Galax to advance to the finals: however, the Science and Social Studies teams did not fare as well. The Science team defeated Auburn, but then lost to Narrows in the semi-finals. The Social Studies team also won their quarter-final match against Rural Retreat before losing to Fort Chiswell.

The two final matches in which Giles participated provided quite a bit of excitement. Despite the fact that they were up against Rural Retreat, who was unbeaten during the regular season, the English team went into the match with high hopes. Giles was declared the winner at first, but then the score was tied after an appeal by Rural Retreat. Both teams then had to go back on stage for three toss-ups. Junior Tami Hedrick answered the first two questions to capture the trophy. "I knew we were going to win — I just had a feeling all day," said Coach Karen Yolton. The Math team also had a close call. Trailing by fifteen points with only four questions remaining, the team fought back and won by five points. "When I looked and saw we were behind. I said to the other people. 'Come on — we can do it!' I didn't want to go into a tie-breaker because I wasn't sure we could win that," said Sophomore Elizabeth Jackson.

"The outstanding two year performance of our champion MACC teams has proven that academic excellence is, indeed, a priority at our school. I feel privileged and proud to be a part of a program that allows me to share a mutual love of learning with students who are so bright, so quick, so alive with intellectual curiosity," commented Coach Tracy Sonafelt.

The Band marched its way through many activities during the year.

"We do a lot of work, but it makes you feel good in the end," said sophomore Patricia Carbaugh. Aside from preparing for pep rallies, half-time shows, and their two concerts, they sponsored several fundraisers. Doughnut and candy sales, along with Tag Day, helped the group finance their spring trip to Richmond. "The trip is worth the sacrifices you have to make," said junior Tim Wright.

In Richmond, the Band performed three concert selections before a panel of judges. They were given two "superior" ratings and one "excellent" rating. Despite the disappointment of not capturing the trophy in their category, the Band members enjoyed the trip and viewed it as a learning experience. "Performing really enriches my musical life and I enjoy exposing other people to music," said junior Arlou Borillo.

"SINE NOMINE" AGAIN?

"Okay, guys, let's settle down. We have a lot of work to do!" The words, spoken by Mr. Larry Marion, began the Chorale class everyday. The Chorale, made up of students in grades 9-12 selected by audition, started the year by running the Bandana Bar during all home football games. After each game, the group was given the unique opportunity of cleaning the field.

It's not all bad, though. The Chorale sang for various school and community activities, held their annual Christmas and Spring Concerts, and sang at Baccalaurate and Graduation at the end of the school year. They toured the elementary schools in the Eastern section of the county, sang at the lighting of the Love Light Tree at Giles Memorial Hospital, and attended All Regional, All State, and the District VII Choral Festival.

The annual spring trip this year was to the Peachtree Music Festival in Atlanta, Georgia where they received a bronze trophy for their performance. While there they also visited Six Flags Over Georgia, and the zoo. When asked to comment on this year's music, everybody said they were sick of "Sine Nomine" which they had been singing since Christmas, but the fond memories far outweighed the complaints.

HEY! HEY!

WE'RE THE CHOIRS

Most students think of choir as a stepping stone to symphonic chorale. Though many students seem to follow this pattern, this is not the case. Choir is not officially associated with the chorale and "needs to have its own sense of individuality," says Mr. Larry Marion, the director of both groups.

Since it is the largest choir (53 members) that he has directed in a while, he sees it as a challenge. He claims that the success of the choir depends on the amount of work that the group puts into it at each practice.

Most of the time was spent in the classroom preparing for concerts. Preparation included learning vocal production, learning to use the voice, and to read music.

The choir performed at Riverview Nursing Home, various churches and other community affairs. This year their lineup of music selections consisted of popular hits from Lionel Richie, Whitney Houston, Huey Lewis, and the Monkees.

When choir members were asked why they took the class, many said they were seeking the musical/performing experience. Other students, such as Craig Gowdy, simply "had an empty space in the schedule and wanted to take something."

The groups' attitude is abundantly positive. This is important because as Fortis Morse puts it, "Cooperation is the vital element in good musical harmony."

CAREER OR HOBBY?

Upon hearing the "vocational phrase classes," many people im-mediately think of the Vocational School; however, the regular curriculum offers a wide range of vocational classes. These include business classes such as Office Practice, Typing, and Accounting. The Home Economics Department provides classes for students interested in fields such as Child Development or Family Living. In addition, the Industrial Arts Department offers classes to those interested in Technical Drawing or Wood Technology.

As a result of skills learned in these classes, many students qualify for work in various careers immediately after high school. For the student who does not have college plans, this opportunity is very important; for those who do plan to attend college, practical skills are never a waste of time. Whether thought of as a route to a career or a hobby, vocational classes are an important part of education.

GETTING TECHNICAL

The primary goal of Giles County Vocational School is to teach students a trade, preparing them to enter the labor market as skilled craftsman or into post-secondary programs designed to further their skill development. The staff at the Vocational School strive to develop a proper respect for honest work, pride in accomplishment, and an awareness of the contributions of the individual worker to society and the economy. Students are provided instruction and practical experiences in current technical knowledge in obtaining gainful employ-

The Vocational School offers instruction in the following 9 areas: Building Trades, Drafting, Auto Mechanics, Machine Shop, Welding, Auto Body Repair, Cosmetology, Nursing Assistant, and Practical Nursing.

Students are also offered membership in two organizations at the Vocational School. These are the local Chapter of Vocational Industrials Clubs of America (VICA) and the Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA). By participating in these organizations the students develop additional skills in leadership, job applications, interviews and community service. Both organizations also provide the students the opportunity to participate in trade competition in each area which provide motivation for the improvement of skills.

FOR THE STUDENTS, BY THE STUDENTS...

In this government there were no Watergate or Iran-Contra scandals; no pay raises or expense accounts; no summit meetings in secluded resorts. Just hard working volunteers involved in the activities connected with school government.

Led by President Tony Dowdy, a senior, the group began their year one day early with Eighth Grade Orientation. The project helped eighth graders become familiar with the building as well as school policies before everyone else arrived.

With the opening of school, each day began and closed with the words, "Could I have your attention for the announcements, please?" as the voices of Tony Dowdy and vice president Kelly Munsey, a junior, made the announcements.

Meanwhile, the SCA organized and executed the Homecoming activities, including the parade and half-time show. They also sponsored the Snow Court Dance in December. After school, members sold candy in the lobby to raise money for their treasury. By the end of school, the group had already spent over $2000 on a lighted marquis to be installed in front of the school for the coming year.

All of this work was performed by the students, for the students, always with the common good in mind.

MAKING THE GRADE

Leadership, scholarship, service, and character — all are the requirements for acceptance into the National Honor Society. This year, thirty additional students met those requirements and were inducted into the group at the annual tapping ceremony. When asked about her reaction to being tapped, Tammy Williams said, "I was nervous and wondered if it was really me they meant to tap." Deena Suits described the experience as "a proud moment."

Tappings isn't the Honor Society's only activity. Stationary sales and a car wash/bake sale were held to raise money for the $200 scholarship. Senior Shannon Moye received this honor at the Senior Awards Assembly.

HI-IDEALS

What comes to mind when someone mentions the Hi-Y Club? Service, MGA, or maybe fun? It is, as all members know, a combination of all of these.

This year has been just as busy as ever. Service activities such as selling tickets for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, and visiting senior citizens at Riverview Nursing Home are traditional. A new service challenge to the club this year was helping with the Jaycee Christmas Shopping Tour.

For the sixth year, the variety show was a success. Emceed by Sophomore Glenn Myers, the show presented 14 acts including dancing, singing, performances by both rock and country bands, and gymnastics. Proceeds from this project helped sponsor service projects throughout the year as well as a club picnic in May.

Again this year this group sponsored the mock judiciary trial held at the county court-house. Nine of the members served on the jury while others acted as witnesses, attorneys and the accused.

In April, twelve members and sponsor Pat O'Brien attended the Model General Assembly in Richmond. While there, members learned firsthand the steps necessary to introduce and pass a bill through the state legislature. This year's bill recommended adding a game warden to each Virginia county; it made it past committees and on to the Senate, but was killed on the floor.

This was a busy year, but everyone associated with the group agreed that the fun made it worth the work.

You have the right to remain silent. Sophomore Rob Masri, tried in the Mock Judiciary Trial, was arrested for murder by Deputy Henry Jennelle and Sheriff John Hopkins.

THE VERDICT

"I object to this entire line of questioning!"

"Sustained! Rephrase your questions, Counsellor." . . . and so went the Model Judiciary sponsored by the Tri-Hi-Y and Hi-Y Clubs. For this mock trial, sophomore Rob Masri was arrested by Sheriff Johnny Hopkins and deputy Henry Jennelle on December 11 and charged with the murder of his girlfriend. Masri was defended by sophomore Elizabeth Jackson and prosecuted by freshman Fortis Morse. The jury, made up of students, brought in a verdict of guilty of second degree murder.

In addition to this local proceeding, Elizabeth Jackson attended the Model Judiciary in Richmond, and nine others attended Model General Assembly in Richmond.

The Tri-Hi-Y, a Christian service organization, also participated in several service projects among which were the sale of raffle tickets for the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, the provision of food for needy families at Christmas, and help with the local Jaycees' annual Christmas Shopping Tour for needy Children.

After fulfilling this busy schedule, members were ready to adjourn until the next season.

SERVICE - THE KEY TO SUCCESS

Wearing everything from aprons to coats and ties, members of the Key Club had a busy year. A service organization, this club is sponsored by the Pearisburg Kiwanis Club. Members participated in several Kiwanis Club activities, including a rummage sale, and held a cookout breakfast for members of the parent club.

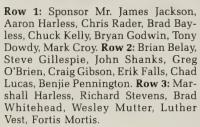

In the fall, the group entered units in the Homecoming parade, and throughout the year attended all division conferences and the District Convention in Virginia Beach. During the year the group contributed to many worthwhile projects including the purchase of sweaters for the MACC team, new flags for the Band flag girls, donations to SADD as well as other school groups.

The club's main money making project was the Miss G.H.S. Beauty Pageant which involved thirty contestants.

"We did a lot of good things this year . . . ," commented President Chuck Kelly. In the case of the Key Club, service was its own reward.

SERVICE WITH A SMILE

Members led 20 blindfolded initiates through hallways to a tempting meal consisting of sardines, corn chips and grapes in plain yogurt, unsweetened brownies and anchovies. Once suitably initiated, members began a year of service to school and community.

These activities began with selling Homecoming mums as a fundraiser. The major service project benefited a needy family at Christmas when the Keyettes collected food.

Mothers and daughters alike enjoyed a covered dish dinner at the annual Mother/Daughter Dinner in March. Entertainment was provided by the Jeffers children, who sang a variety of hymns.

Several Keyettes members attended a make-up class, compliments of Mary Kay Cosmetics and Mrs. Elizabeth Shaver. Proper application was the focus of the class.

A project new to the club this year was helping the Giles County Sheriff's Department to fingerprint children. This project took place during Easter weekend at Maxway, and placed on police records the fingerprints of many young county residents.

Despite the agony of initiation, the Keyette Club was made up of members who were all ready and eager to serve others.

PAINTING THE TOWN

The Pep Club started the school year by trying their hands at vandalism. They showed their support for the football teams by decorating windows of local businesses, with the merchants' blessings, of course. Although this may sound like fun, members admitted that catchy sayings didn't always come easily, and Glass Wax under the fingernails and running down arms wasn't very pleasant. Still, most really enjoyed this unusual way of demonstrating school spirit and support for school athletics.

Another club activity was the annual door decorating contest during Homecoming Week. Members competed to see who could devise the most original decoration for classroom doors. Cash prize winners were LaRhonda Meredith and Jacquie Stowers. So, when members "defaced" windows downtown, they were not committing a crime, but merely doing their duties as behind-the-scene-cheerleaders.

SMOKE 'EM OUT!

"Stomp out that butt! You can't smoke today."

For at least one day during the school year, the students could harass the teachers and get away with it. This was all because of the Great American Smoke-Out. Monogram Club members sponsored the event by hanging posters, passing out buttons, and adopting smokers. Members asked smokers to sign contracts agreeing not to smoke on that one day.

The club became further involved in community affairs by stuffing and delivering stockings at Christmas to the Trainable Perfect to the letter. Lettermen Adrian Williams, Kyle Cunningham and Eddie Coffey, all seniors, sport clothing bearing the symbol of their eligibility for membership in the Monogram Club.

Mentally Retarded students. They also helped the Pep Club buy a refrigerator for a family whose house was destroyed by fire. In the Spring, the group presented the Jackie Stump Memorial Scholarship to senior Keith Johnson.

Among other projects they tackled this year were an entry in the Homecoming Parade and a fundraiser involving the sale of picture frames. They also began a fund this year which they plan to apply toward the purchase of letterman jackets for worthy members who would otherwise be unable to purchase one.

These noble athletes advocated a no smoking policy from the standpoint of good health, but, from the looks of their club record, they didn't have time to do it anyway!

SADD, BUT TRUE

"Don't be afraid to stand up and say 'no'. Don't feel pressured into a car with a drunk driver." These are words of State Trooper Don Allen, guest speaker at the organizational meeting of SADD, Students Against Drunk Driving.

SADD, founded by a former high school principal, is run by students. The purpose of the organization is to offer alternatives to drinking and driving when intoxicated. Students are urged to call parents or friends to drive them home. SADD even provided a "Contract for Life;" this contract was between parents and teens in which teens agreed to call parents if they had too much to drink, and parents agreed to ask no questions until later. In this contract parents also agreed not to drive when drinking.

In the program's first three years, the number of students killed in drunk driving accidents dropped dramatically.

The local chapter was organized by Carrie Gillespie and sponsored by Mrs. Anne Wheeler and Mrs. Judy Mann. Officers elected were: President, Carrie Gillespie; Vice President, Amy Baker; Secretary-Treasurer, Laura Butler; Reporter, Tony Dowdy.

Throughout the year the local chapter presented programs and projects designed to encourage students to say "NO!" to alcohol. This certainly was a vote of confidence for safer highways.

SPANISH SPOKEN HERE

I can speak Spanish!" This is what most people say when you mention the language de Espanol but not the Spanish Club.

This year, the club was fortunate enough to have a foreign exchange student from Chile in the school. Maria Jose Urgahart, was the guest of Bronwyn Muldoon and her family for three months of the school year. During her stay she was exposed to many American novelties. In return, she revealed to students a culture different to the norm. The experience was truly an asset to the club. Among other activities, the club traveled to Roanoke to see Spanish "Tortilla, Taco, Enchilada. See? dancers at William Fleming High School, and ate dinner at Chi Chi's, a Mexican restaurant. The club also sponsored a family at Christmastime and supplied a scholarship for Tammy Wright, a college bound senior planning to further her study in the Spanish Language.

After a year of becoming acquainted with Spanish culture, club members would readily agree that there is much more to the study of Spanish than tacos and tortillas. There are also Flamenco dancers from Spain, a new friend from Chile, and a whole new world to explore.

A TRIP TO EUROPE WELL, SORT OF...

"Would you like to buy some posters? No? Well, how about a carnation? Or maybe you'd like some candy."

By the end of the year, French club members had learned the art of salesmanship. They had to — they needed over $3000 for their trip to Busch Gardens. While there, members enjoyed facsimilies of the Old Country. Of the wide variety of rides, the Loch Ness Monster and Big Bad Wolf roller-coasters were the favorites.

Besides raising money and having fun, the French Club had two major service projects. Members collected food at Thanksgiving and toys at Christmas for needy families.

Hard work and good fun — principle components of this year's activity schedule — are the same in any language!

THERE'S AN ART TO THIS!

Talk about a club with pizzazz! (Pizzas, that is.) The art club had lots of them, but they sold them all, $12,000 worth, to be exact. But they didn't stop there. They went on to sell over $3,000 worth of stuffed animals, as well as brass candlesticks, and figurines.

This money helped finance a trip for approximately 25 to Philadelphia in the spring. There they visited the Museum of Art, the Rodin Museum of Art, Constitution Hall, and the Franklin Institute. The groups also collected over 200 canned food items for the Eaves family whose house was destroyed by fire.

Now when members hear the phrase, "Say Cheese!" They don't smile; they groan. Come to think of it, they react the same way when somebody says, "pepperoni."

GETTING IT DOWN TO A SCIENCE

Could there be a scientific approach to winning the Homecoming float competition? If there is, this club has found it. For the fourth time in five years, the Science Club took first place in the parade with their entry, "Dissection of a Maroon." The "Maroon," representing the George Wythe opponent in the Homecoming football game, was made of chicken feathers and green slime.

The club also attempted to launch a tissue paper hot air ballon, but were not as successful. They attributed their failure to the fact that the air was not hot enough to lift the balloon off the ground.

To end their year, club members took a field trip to the Roanoke Valley Science Museum where they learned how scientific principles could be applied to every day life. (Maybe that's where they learned the secret to successful float-building!)

IT'S HISTORY, MAN.

When they hear of a history club, many people visualize activities occurring in a time warp, but this concept is a thing of the past. The History Club is in the now.

During the year, members sold donuts and onions, and had a car wash to raise money which was eventually spent on state of the

For National History Day, ten members participated in regional, state, and national events with slide presentations, historical reenactments, and oral presentations.

Organized this year, the group had a successful start, and, as history repeated itself, ended the year notably in the National History Day competition, thus demonstrating the possibility of a year with happy endings.

LET'S HEAR IT FOR THE BOOKWORMS

Making the public aware of their services was a large part of the Reading Tutors' year. They taped a spot on W.N.R.V. to boost awareness and also put up posters to encourage students to include tutoring in their class schedules.

The tutors made games using reading rules to help students improve their reading skills. They also made posters relating to reading to decorate their classroom.

Mrs. Johnston, from the town library, came to talk to the group about the Volunteer Reading Program for adults at the library.

The Reading Tutor Club helped a needy family at Thanksgiving and made a donation to the Child Abuse Society of Giles County using money made at several bake sales held throughout the year.

The tutors ended their year by holding a seminar with upcoming tutors and tutors from Narrows. They shared ideas and discussed the program and ways to improve it next year.

LITERALLY SPEAKING

Reading and writing, but no arithmetic for this group. Their main concern is with words, not numbers.

The Literary Society is composed of aspiring poets and story writers. Every year, members let their talent shine by publishing their works in the Lacedaemonian. Senior Chris Rader designed and sketched this year's cover.

VITAMIN C ENRICHED

How many organizations could boast of ventures that were profitable and generous, as well as wholesome? The Future Farmers of America (FFA) could. Their moneymaking project, selling citrus fruits during the christmas season, was all of these things.

Proceeds from the sales helped the chapter host the Federation FFA picnic at Newport Community Center, and the annual Spring picnic for both FFA and FHA at the Pembroke Park. Nonprofit projects were also a part of the schedule. They donated a portion of the citrus fruit to Riverview Nursing Home, area senior citizens, and needy families. In addition, members planted 1,000 locust seedlings at the county landfill.

In the midst of all this work, they didn't neglect state and federation activities. An impressive number of members attended the State Leadership Training Conference at V.P.I. and S.U. as well as the Federation Leadership Training Conference at Christiansburg High School. Members also explored the numerous careers in agriculture on Career Day held here. In attendance were representatives from Virginia as well as United States Soil Conservation Service.

Whether or not they were seriously considering a career in agriculture, FFA members gained valuable experience in the areas of leadership, service, and generosity — enriched with vitamin C!

FUTURE HELPERS OF AMERICA

An exciting part of learning is being able to apply knowledge and skills in order to help others. This was the major objective of the Future Homemakers of America. They prepared food for the Christian kitchen at the Episcopal Church, providing lunches for the needy of Giles County. On the Parent Teacher Conference Day, the members provided Recipes for success. Sophomores Tressa Bradley and Tammy Broyles prepare a menu for the Christian Soup Kitchen. refreshments in the lobby. They also went to the Pembroke Housing Development for a tour. There they taught residents as well as FHA parents the basics of macramé.

While serving others, members continued to learn. Among educational programs was one presented by Va. Tech. professor Dr. Paula Dail and her daughter concerning single parenting.

Obviously, this group was composed of people who didn't wait for the future to help others. They're doing it now.

Macrame anyone? FHA members teach senior citizens how to macrame.

Celebrate! Sophomores Karen Webb and Tressa Bradley, and junior Gloria Midkiff serve refreshments in the lobby on Parent-Teacher Conference Day.

WHERE IS AIASA?

"The first time I heard of it, I thought everybody was saying Asia," and thought it must have something to do with foreign immigrants," said one rather naive teacher. Many people even spell it that way, but on the contrary to popular interpretations, AIASA stands for American Industrial Arts Student Association. The purpose of the group is to promote understanding of the importance of technology in today's society.

Members were busy throughout the year. In the fall the group attended the AIASA Fall Rally, a leadership conference at VPI & SU. In October, the club received third place recognition for their entry in the Homecoming parade.

They sold candy and cookbooks, a project which netted over $1000. This money financed the purchase of a planer for the Industrial Arts shop.

In the Spring, members participated in the Spring Rally at VPI & SU. There they entered projects made in Industrial Arts class competing with other schools in the Southwest Region.

All of these events and projects took place locally, not in Asia!

EXPERIENCE: THE BEST TEACHER

Mischievious students; cafeteria food; bus duty; noisy sixth period classes! Why would anybody want to be a teacher? Ask Students In Action for Education (SAE). Consisting of senior girls except for one sophomore, all members were interested in careers in education.

One of the club's main objectives was to help prepare members for college life. They visited Radford University and Virginia Tech to become better acquainted with the campuses.

Snack Time! Senior Karen Gallagher, president of the SAE, is involved in various activities that will prepare her for a career in education. Here, as a reading tutor, she helps with one of the group's fundraisers.

At one club meeting, a student from Concord doing her student teaching in the science department was the guest speaker. She discussed her education classes, student teaching and campus life in general.

At the Awards Assembly in May, the club presented a scholarship to Heidi Scarborough, a member planning to major in Education at Winthrope College.

No one can totally prepare another for the frustrations of a teaching career. Only experience can do that. But beyond the discouraging statistics is a vision of accomplishment and personal reward that drives young people to become teachers despite the odds.

COULD WE BE OF ASSISTANCE?

"Good morning, Giles High School," said a student answering the phone in the main office. This was usually followed by, "Lydia, will you take this message to room 107 as you collect absentee slips?" On her way back from this chore she most likely was stopped by a frantic teacher. "Are you on your way to the office? Good. Tell Mr. Matlock to come up here; I can't leave my class."

Meanwhile, in the gym classes, manning their whistles and clipboards, student assistants called roll, led exercise drills, officiated games, and checked showers.

At the same time up in the library, a student behind the checkout desk stamped cards, collected overdue book fines and helped with bulletin boards.

Some students assisted teachers in other subject areas, typing, running errands, or assembling tests and handouts.

Student assistants were all over the building. What would we do without them? Nobody wants to find out.

Can I Take a Message? Senior office assistant Christina Smith answers telephone in main office.

Judging a book by its cover? Library assistant Junior Pam Combs helps with Spring book inventory.

Roll call! Second period office assistant Vicki Hendricks, a junior, delivers abséntee list to Mr. Pat O'Brien.

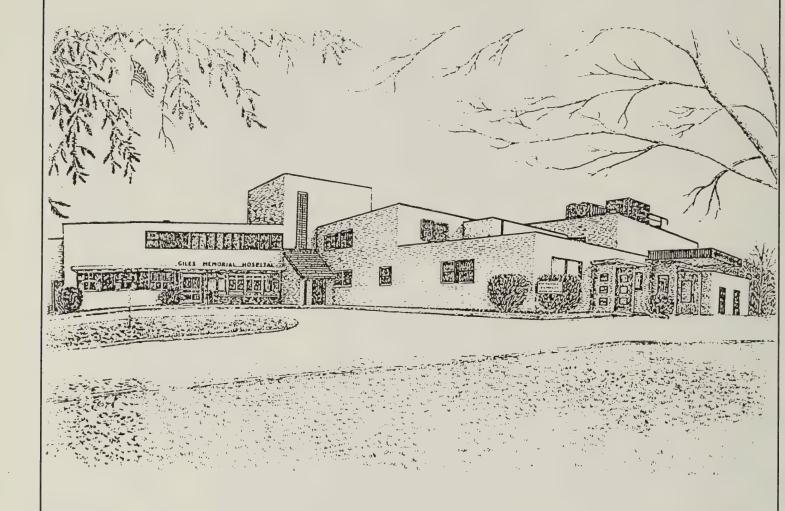

Love that tennis. Junior Dawn Sutton, Physical Education assistant, gets involved in a tennis game with Freshmen girls.

Ball Four! Senior gym assistant Trey Sutphin officiates softball games involving freshmen Todd Kanode and Mark Middleton.

YOU HAD TO BE THERE!

It's hard to believe some of the things that went on during the school year, but believe it or not, they actually did happen. The students viewed each event with mixed emotions. The cancellation of mid-term exams was greeted by joyous yells, while the announcement of a make-up day on Saturday received disgruntled groans. The addition of music to the cafeteria during lunch and the first outdoor graduation were both met with great enthusiasm. For some people, these events may not have seemed remarkable or revolutionary, but in order to understand the full impact they made on the school, you had to be there.

"Here, chick, chick, chick." Juniors Ella Buchanan and Shannon O'Brien present a commerical during Creative Writ-ya." Senior Andy Wilburn takes a break from the rigorous world of newspaper

SEEING IS BELIEVING

Unbelievably, another year has gone by. Everyone experienced it when it happened, and then relived it through the pages of the SHIELD.

Some seniors, trying to hold on to a fragile thread tying them to five of the most important years of their lives, will return to visit teachers and to comment on the students' childishness. Underclassmen will walk the halls again, and sit in the class-rooms, anticipating the END. But for all of them, when they pass the school, it will be difficult to believe the experiences, the people — the times.

"I'll see you at the reunion next year."
Susan Fisher hugs a classmate following graduation.

"When did we study this?" Senior Kyle Cunningham takes his last high school test.

Wreck the halls. Seniors Marvin Farley, David Edwards, Tony Dowdy, Kyle Cunningham, and Mark Croy clean their lockers for the last time.

The SHIELD staff would like to thank the parents, the administration, the teachers, the coaches, and especially Rusty Kelly, the VIRGINIAN LEADER, Judy Mann, Rusty Castelle, and Kellie Shrader for their help in supplying pictures, information, and copy. A very special thanks also goes to Mrs. Betsy Wood, yearbook advisor, for all her guidance and hard work.
